Ryan Vanderkin

The goal of every collegiate team in the nation is to compete for championships each season. The objective remains clear for the 2007 Long Island University men's soccer team: compete for a Northeast Conference Championship and earn the league's automatic berth into the NCAA College Cup.

"Year in and year out, the expectation is the same: To compete for a Northeast Conference title," head coach TJ Kostecky said. Kostecky enters his ninth season at the helm of the Blackbirds' men's soccer program.

The difference between the past couple of seasons and this year's team, Kostecky says, is the depth and talent of the squad. In addition to the 15 returning letterwinners, the coaching staff has infused the team with size, speed and talent in the form of 12 newcomers.

"The last few years, players have been injured at critical times," Kostecky said. "This year, the newcomers will allow us to train at a higher level, maintain higher levels of play in the event of injury and the play in matches will be that much better."

Forwards

Three of Long Island's top scoring forwards return to give the Blackbirds an effective scoring punch. Senior Ryan Vanderkin saw time at forward and defender last year, but will concentrate solely on playing up top this season. With his speed and relentlessness, Kostecky believes the Plymouth, Wisc., native could be primed for a big season.

Determination and a high work rate have helped make junior Jukka Lehto a staple at one forward spot over the past two seasons. Lehto has established himself as one of the team's top goal scorers, tallying eight scores over the past two seasons. He will again compete for one of the starting roles this year.

Also returning is one of the more dangerous players on the Blackbirds roster in sophomore Ryan Williams. The hometown product from Brooklyn used his unmatched quickness and one-on-one ability to score two goals and four assists in his inaugural campaign and much of the same can be expected this season.

Junior transfer Peter Huijgen from Holland will also vie for time at forward. Huijgen is a skillful player with flare and speed. He is strong on the ball and is also dangerous taking free kicks and corner kicks.

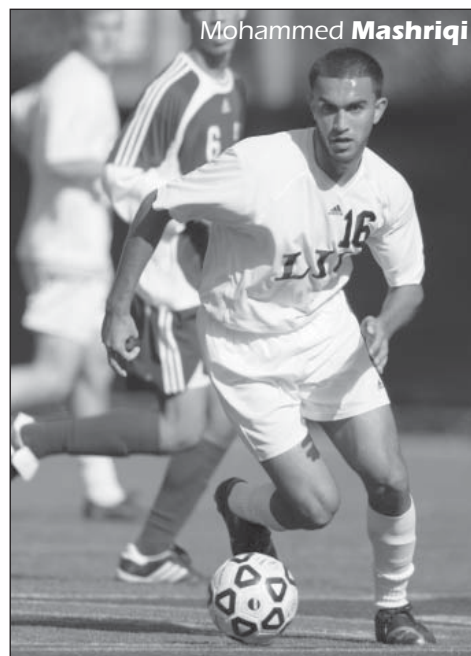

Midfield

Kostecky believes the midfield is the deepest and most talented position on LIU's roster. The Blackbirds return six players that have been starters in previous seasons and add three players who will push the veterans for playing time.

Juniors Mohammed Mashriqi and Josh Merchant are two-year starters that will be looking to make big strides as they become upperclassmen. Mashriqi is a playmaking central midfielder that tied for the team lead in assists a season ago. His passing ability will set up the attack and pressure opposing defenses. Merchant was an All-NEC Second Team selection his freshman year. After spending the offseason with the Bradenton Academics of the Premier Developmental League, he will look to use his speed and deft left foot to make his presence felt on the outside.

Classmate Ryan Vignona saw action in 14 games, including six starts, last year and will use his speed at a wide midfield spot. Johnny Chavez, also a junior, started six games for the Blackbirds last fall and will look to use a strong summer to help propel him into a key role. Senior Lior Roisman has been plagued by injury in each of the last two seasons after starting for much of his freshman campaign and will vie for playing time.

Also returning in the midfield is redshirt sophomore Adam Kelemet. The Morris Plains, N.J., native looked primed for a big season in 2006 before a knee injury in the spring sidelined him for the duration of the year. His size and ability in the air will add another dimension on the right side. Junior Franklyn Solarte rounds out the returnees and will be looking for minutes as an outside midfielder.

Mohammed Mashriqi

Three talented newcomers enter the fold and will push hard for both starting roles and key bench spots. Two transfers from NEC rival St. Francis (N.Y.) will bolster the position as senior Josh Alarcon and graduate student Vincenzo Conigliaro make the trek across town to the downtown Brooklyn campus. Conigliaro led the Terriers in points his freshman season and ranked second during his sophomore and junior years. Alarcon started 14 games during his two years with the Terriers, tallying a pair of assists. Both will make impacts immediately, as will freshman Sascha Donougher. A highly-touted recruit from Kassel, Germany, by way of West Windsor, N.J., Donougher competed for the elite Red Bull New York U-18 squad and will push for playing time right away.

The midfield spot did take a hit this offseason with the loss of sophomore Frank Alesci. The lone freshman to be named to the All-NEC First Team last year, Alesci tore his anterior cruciate ligament while playing for the PDL's Bakersfield Brigade and will redshirt this year.

Defenders

The defensive unit for Long Island will have a much different look than a season ago, with the three returnees being joined by five newcomers. Leading the returning players are a pair of upperclassmen; senior Lexton Moy and junior Daniel Barci. Moy started the first three games at right back in 2006 but battled knee injuries and was limited for the rest of the season. A native of New York City's Chinatown section, he had a productive offseason playing with the 2007 PDL champion Laredo Heat. Barci used his athleticism and jumping ability to start in 11 contests a season ago. Both will look to reprise their roles in the back this year.

Junior Emiliano Tramontozzi hopes 2007 is finally the year that he makes his presence felt on the pitch. A Brooklyn native with the potential to be a top-notch defender, Tramontozzi has been relegated to the bench by injuries in each of his first two seasons on campus.

Two Dutch players will add much needed size to the backline. Paul de Koning, a graduate student, and sophomore Koen Hogenboom are focused athletes who will add consistency and organization to the defense. de Koning, who stands 6-foot-3, will add size along the backline, while both are capable with the ball and have the ability to initiate the attack as well.

Junior Frank Judice comes to Brooklyn after spending two seasons at the University of Memphis. An athletic defender with outstanding pace from Covington, La., he spent his offseason with the Baton Rouge Capitals of the PDL. Another Louisiana product, Stephen Duncan, comes to LIU with a decorated high school resume. Duncan was voted the Louisiana High School Player of the Year for Jesuit High School and helped his team to its second state title in three seasons.

California native Kyle Land rounds out the group of incoming defenders. Land is an athletic player that can play center or right back. He had offseason surgery and should be at 100 percent near midseason.

Goalkeepers

Defense is often credited with winning championships and strong play between the posts will provide the timely saves to win important games. Senior Alex Fatovic returns as the Blackbirds' starting netminder and provides plenty of experience at the position for the Blackbirds. After spending his offseason as the top goalie on the PDL's Cleveland Internationals he will look to provide consistency for the Blackbirds on a daily basis.

Freshman Michael Wood enters his inaugural campaign with a tremendous amount of high-level club experience in England. Wood's ability to handle high balls and crosses will help his push for playing time. Classmate Justin Thorn, a Bakersfield, Calif., native, also joins the Blackbirds, but he may be limited by offseason surgery.

Head Coach

TJ Kostecky

Head Coach • Ninth Season
East Stroudsburg, 1983

Architect. Tactician. Teacher. Builder. TJ Kostecky has restored Long Island University’s men’s soccer team back to glory. He’s done it by bringing in the top local talent from New York City and its neighboring boroughs, as well as from across the country and across the ocean in Europe.

Kostecky completed the restoration of LIU’s soccer success in 2004 when he led the Blackbirds to their first NCAA College Cup berth since 1986. The trip to the tournament and the Northeast Conference Championship that preceded it, capped off an amazing season which many had anticipated after watching Kostecky engineer a steady climb in the conference since he took over the job. LIU reached the NEC title contest in 2001 and 2002 – losing on a penalty kick both times – before capturing the championship with a 1-0 win over Fairleigh Dickinson.

Kostecky has engineered successful rebuilding projects at each of his prior coaching stops. Prior to LIU, he directed a remarkable turnaround at Appalachian State in Boone, N.C.

Appalachian State had suffered four consecutive losing seasons prior to Kostecky’s hiring in 1998. In his only season at the school, he led the Mountaineers to a 13-8 mark in 1998, marking the best first-year record for a coach in over 40 years of program history. For his efforts, he was named Southern Conference Coach of the Year.

Kostecky arrived in Boone following a successful run as head coach and director of athletics at Pfeiffer University in Misenheimer, N.C., from 1994-97. He was handed the reins of a program that had suffered eight-straight losing seasons before he came in and turned the program’s fortunes around. During this tenure, the team boasted a 46-25-7 record and captured two Carolinas-Virginia Athletics Conference championships. Kostecky was named Coach of the Year in 1997 and mentored one All-American and nine all-conference honorees during his tenure.

He began his collegiate coaching career at New Jersey Institute of Technology, where he led the Highlanders from 1988-93. NJIT compiled a 67-37-11 mark in his six years, capturing conference championships in 1991 and 1992 and making four ECAC postseason trips. Kostecky’s accomplishments at NJIT came in his native New Jersey, where he starred scholastically at Woodbridge Township High School.

In 1979 at age 20, Kostecky was named varsity coach at Jefferson Township (N.J.) High School. He founded and became president of the Jefferson Township Youth Soccer Club and today he serves as Director of Coaching for the club team, FC Copa.

Kostecky credits the success he has accumulated on the sidelines to his philosophies on game preparation and the involvement of his players in the program.

“My approach to coaching soccer is based on the fact that it is different from other American sports. It is really a player-directed game,” he said. “Most coaching is done in preparation for the game as opposed to in-game coaching. By game time, it is usually too late to accomplish anything.

“I also encourage players to evaluate all aspects of the program and give me feedback. I am only one person and the players may have a different read on what is happening with the team.”

Tactically, Kostecky’s practice sessions involve a system called Vision Training that he and business partner Len Bilous developed several years ago. This method helps players make smart, well-informed decisions by improving their field vision.

Throughout his career, Kostecky has been an instrumental figure in facilitating the growth of soccer in America. From 1987-94 he was a coach for New Jersey's Olympic Development Team and was responsible for the training and selection of the state's top players for the United States National Team. When he accepted his post at Pfeiffer, he filled a similar role with North Carolina's Olympic Development squad. Several of the players he mentored continue to play in Major League Soccer, including former U.S. National Team captain Claudio Reyna of the New York Red Bulls.

Kostecky has also worked with U.S. Men's and Women's National Team members, including Julie Foudy, a captain of the 1999 Women's World Cup Champions. He conducted an instructional clinic for inner city children at the 1998 NCAA Division I Championships in Richmond, Va., for the NCAA Youth Education Through Sports Program and was again a guest clinician for YES at the 1999 and 2000 NCAA Championships.

In 1989, Kostecky founded Soccer Start, a youth soccer program for inner city children. He served as the program's National Chairman until 1993. The program continues to identify and cultivate the abundance of talent in the inner-cities. He was appointed World Cup '94 Committee Chair by then New Jersey Governor Jim Florio and coordinated training site activities in the Metropolitan area for each international team.

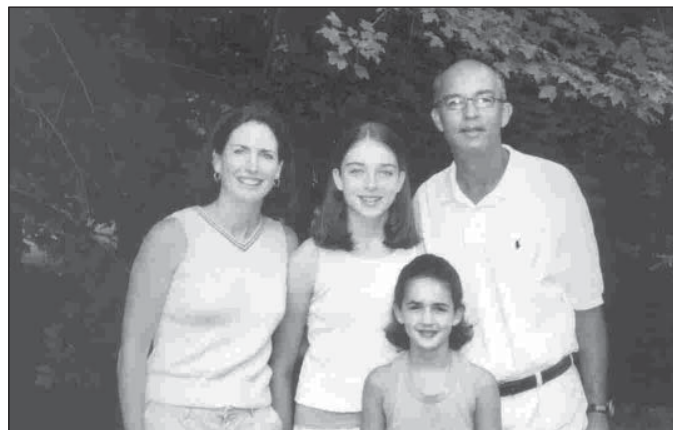

A featured clinician around the world, Kostecky conducted a coaching seminar in Masku, Finland, in March of 2005 on Vision Training. In early 2005, he released a DVD under the same name for players and coaches to use. Since its release, it has become one of the most requested coaching DVDs in the country and abroad.

Kostecky is holder of an "A" license from the United States Soccer Federation and the "Premier Diploma" from the National Soccer Coaches Association of America, which are the highest coaching licences given in the U.S. Kostecky's professional career began in 1981 as camp director for the Vision Training Soccer Camps. He serves as vice president of the camps that are running successfully throughout the East Coast. Last year marked the 25th anniversary of the Vision Training Soccer Camps.

A former all-state performer at Woodbridge, he was inducted into the school's Hall of Fame in 1995. He played midfield on the men's soccer team at East Stroudsburg University and received a bachelor's degree in health and physical education in 1983. He completed his master's degree at East Stroudsburg in the same field in 1992. Kostecky serves as adjunct professor in the Department of Sports Science at Long Island University. In addition, he serves as program director of the new minor being offered in sports management.

He currently resides in Fair Haven, N.J., with his wife, Donna, and daughters, Kate and Caroline.

Chris Lawrence
Assistant Coach • Ninth Season
Basingstoke College of Higher Education, 1989

Chris Lawrence enters his ninth year as an assistant coach on the LIU staff. The charismatic coach has been an integral part of the Blackbirds' success. Lawrence is responsible for all aspects of the program, including game strategy, recruiting, scouting and running practices.

Lawrence, who enjoyed a distinguished playing career in his native England, began his coaching career stateside in 1995 at the Pingry School in Martinsville, N.J. During Lawrence's four-year tenure, Pingry captured two state, county and conference championships. His 1998 squad concluded the season with a 22-0-1 record and Lawrence was named Coach of the Year by the Courier News and the Star-Ledger.

From 1997-99, Lawrence was head coach of the New Jersey Olympic Development Program Under-19 team. He was heavily involved in the selection and training of this squad for regional, national and Olympic competition. For the past five years he has been a member of the New Jersey state coaching staff, conducting coaching licenses.

Lawrence's playing career was highlighted by two years (1988-1990) as a member of Southampton F.C. in the English First Division. Lawrence also spent four years playing semi-professionally in England with Woking, Basingstoke and Wealdstone FC.

Lawrence holds an "A" coaching license and UEFA badge. A 1989 graduate of Basingstoke College of Higher Education, he has earned a Higher National Diploma in hotel and business studies along with a similar degree in food, health and hygiene.

Lawrence, his wife Susan, and children Casadi, Alexa and Reid reside in Warren, N.J.

Stephen Hoogerwerf
Assistant Coach • Fifth Season
Long Island University, 2007

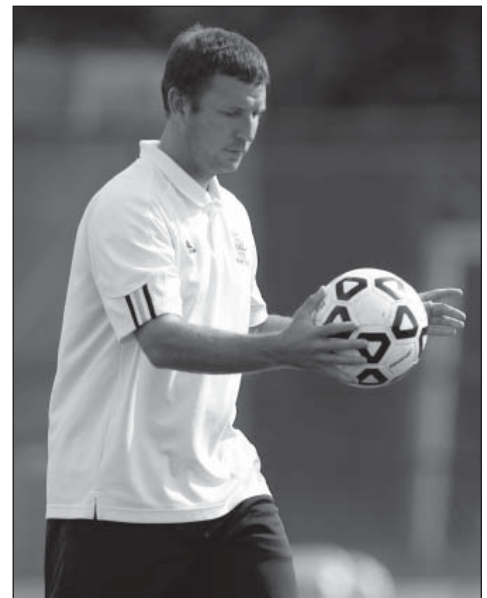

Stephen Hoogerwerf begins his fifth season on the Blackbirds' staff and is primarily responsible for working with the team's goalkeepers. In addition, he is involved in game strategy, recruiting and film editing.

Hoogerwerf has also coached at the club level with the Brooklyn Knights and Manhattan Kickers. Additionally, Hoogerwerf is also involved with coaching goalkeepers at the Eastern New York Olympic Development Program. He also has prior experience with FC Westchester and with the Manhattan Soccer Club. In addition, he has done volunteer work with the Kids Island Soccer Program and New York Scores, after-school programs based in Harlem.

The New Orleans native's coaching career began in 1999 in his hometown, capturing two State Cups with the New Orleans Soccer Academy. While there, he was Director of Goalkeeping for both NOSA and the Louisiana Olympic Development Program.

As a player, Hoogerwerf played professionally for the New Orleans Storm of the A-League from 1998-99. He also made stops in the Premier Development League with the Cocoa Expos in 1996 and Pikes Peak Stampede in 1997. Hoogerwerf earned NAIA Second Team All-America and NSCAA Honorable Mention All-America honors at William Carey (Miss.) College during his career from 1995-97.

Hoogerwerf holds an NSCAA National Diploma, USSF 'C' Coaching Licence and NSCAA Goalkeeping Level 3, as well as a Brazilian National Youth License. He currently resides in Brooklyn. He is currently pursuing a master's degree in exercise physiology.

Long Island University has one of the oldest collegiate soccer programs in the East. Since the early 1950's, LIU has produced some of the brightest soccer players and coaches in the country.

The men's soccer program has had more All-Americans than any other sport at LIU with 27 former players earning All-America honors. The Blackbirds have made 13 NCAA Tournaments and in 1966, LIU compiled a 15-2-0 record and collected a runner-up finish at the NCAA Tournament. Dov Markus led the Blackbirds in scoring the next year and was named the first recipient of the prestigious M.A.C. Hermann Trophy, presented to the top collegiate soccer player annually.

LIU had six former players selected in the inaugural Major League Soccer draft on Feb. 6-7, 1996, the most of any other college or university. Giovanni Savarese scored the first eight goals for the New York MetroStars and finished his career with a team-record 41 tallies.

Teammates and Hall of Famers, Ray Klivecka (left) and Joe Machnik, led the Blackbirds to a 8-2-1 record in 1962 and were both named All-Americans.

LIU Athletics Hall of Fame

The Long Island University Athletics Hall of Fame was established in 2000. In total, 44 individuals have been enshrined, including 13 from the men's soccer team, which is the second-most represented team in the Hall.

"This institution has one of the longest and proudest traditions of excellence that is unparalleled by most universities in the country," director of athletics John Suarez noted in February of that year. "We believed it was time to recognize those who have given so much to Blackbirds athletics."

The members are chosen from a committee comprised of current and former administrators. The inductees receive a replica plaque of the permanent version which is displayed on the Wall of Fame, located in Founders Hall, adjacent to the Arnold & Marie Schwartz Athletic Center.

The most recent inductees were Maicol Antelo and Hans-Peter Rietz. Antelo tallied 30 goals from 1984-86, which ranks 16th on the all-time list. He helped propel LIU to a No. 3 national ranking in 1986 after leading the Blackbirds to a 15-1-3 mark and earned first team all-conference honors after finishing third in scoring in the ECAC Metro conference with 15 goals and 15 assists. He helped the Blackbirds to consecutive NCAA Tournament appearances and a 46-6-5 mark during his three-year career. Rietz helped the program to a 47-13-7 record from 1977-80. Rietz led the team in scoring for three consecutive years and posted 59 goals, which ranks second in the all-time annals. Rietz was named Second Team All-America in 1978 and earned honorable mention accolades in 1980. He helped lead LIU to a pair of Metropolitan championships and an NCAA Tournament berth in 1977.

Maicol Antelo (left) is presented with his LIU Hall of Fame jacket by Director of Athletics John Suarez during halftime of a men's basketball game when the 2007 induction class was presented.

Hans-Peter Rietz (below center) was inducted into the LIU Hall of Fame in 2007. He is joined by Provost Gale Stevens Haynes and Director of Athletics John Suarez.

*2007 opponents in bold.

Since its inception in 1981, the Northeast Conference has charted a course of steady growth that continues to this day. Now entering its 27th year, the NEC remains committed to the original principles the conference was founded upon - academic integrity and development, athletic achievement, community outreach and good sportsmanship - while capitalizing on opportunities to build its reputation both regionally and nationally.

When the Northeast Conference was first established as the ECAC-Metro Conference back in 1981, the league's founders had one simple goal in mind: to create a competitive Division I men's basketball conference for unaffiliated schools on the Eastern seaboard. A single-sport entity at its inception, even the league's most ardent supporters during its formative years could not have envisioned a transformation into a burgeoning 11-member, 21-sport conference. The remarkable success story of the conference began to unfold in 1985, when the league began sponsoring additional sports. Three years later, a change of name was in order and the Northeast Conference as we know it today was born. With membership and sport sponsorship continuing to grow over the next decade and beyond, the NEC now enjoys qualification or play-in access to 13 different NCAA Championships (baseball, men's and women's basketball, field hockey, men's and women's golf, women's lacrosse, men's and women's soccer, softball, men's and women's tennis and women's volleyball).

Though the NEC has featured various incarnations since its inception, charter members Fairleigh Dickinson, Long Island, Robert Morris, St. Francis (N.Y.), Saint Francis (Pa.) and Wagner remain part of the current 11-school alignment. They are joined by Monmouth (admitted in 1985), Mount St. Mary's (1989), Central Connecticut State (1997), Quinnipiac (1998) and Sacred Heart (1999). NEC expansion, which culminated in 1999 with the addition of Sacred Heart, has given the league a five-state geographic footprint with access to such major media markets as New York City, Baltimore, Pittsburgh and Hartford.

With the addition of four sports in the last decade, NEC member institutions now compete in 21 championship sports: baseball, men's and women's basketball, men's and women's cross country, field hockey, football, men's and women's golf, men's and women's indoor track and field, women's lacrosse, men's and women's outdoor track and field, men's and women's soccer, softball, women's swimming, men's and women's tennis, and women's volleyball.

Dr. David Steinberg

President

Dr. David Steinberg, the ninth president of Long Island University, was appointed April 1, 1985. During his tenure, the University has experienced a renaissance becoming one of the largest and most comprehensive private universities in the United States. Under his leadership, the University's endowment has increased nearly tenfold from $4.8 million to over $80 million, and its enrollment has risen from 19,000 to over 28,500. He has spearheaded a capital improvement plan, which has led to $400 million in investments in new construction and major renovations, resulting in vast improvements in the quality of study and life on each of the University's campuses, especially, the C.W. Post and Brooklyn Campuses. New doctoral programs have been added and operating reserves have been created and increased.

Born in New York City, Dr. Steinberg, is the son of the late Rabbi Milton Steinberg of Manhattan's Park Avenue Synagogue. He was educated at Phillips Academy at Andover, Malvern College in England, and Harvard College, from which he graduated magna cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa. After a Fulbright year at the University of the Philippines and a year at Columbia University on a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship, he returned to Harvard, where he received both a master's in East Asian Studies (1963) and a Ph.D. in History (1964). Dr. Steinberg also has received several honorary degrees. He began his teaching career in the Department of History at the University of Michigan, where he rose to the rank of full professor. In 1973, he joined the administration of Brandeis University as Executive Assistant to the President, becoming Vice President and University Secretary in 1977.

The author of numerous books and articles on Southeast Asia and, in particular, Philippine history, Steinberg has taught, lectured and written about this important area of the world for four decades. His first book, "Philippine Collaboration in World War II," won the University Press Award in 1969. "The Philippines: A Singular and a Plural Place," now in its fourth edition, was described by U.S. Ambassador to the Philippines, Nicholas Platt, as "the best single-volume guide to understanding the Philippines, past and present." "Dr. Steinberg also edited and co-authored both editions of "In Search of Southeast Asia," one of the major textbooks on the area. He recently collaborated with top scholars from around the world to co-author "The Emergence of Modern Southeast Asia," a new and multifaceted history of this complex region. He is a co-author of "Religion and Religiosity in the Philippines and Indonesia: Essays on State, Society and Public Creeds," 2005.

Gale Stevens Haynes

Provost

"I am a big dreamer," says Gale Stevens Haynes, Provost of Long Island University's Brooklyn Campus and an exemplary educator, lawyer and role model. "If you don't dream, nothing ever changes."

As head of a doctoral-granting institution, Provost Haynes has achieved many of her dreams both as an educator and a parent. Today, she oversees one of the most diverse campuses in the country, with more than 11,000 students, managing an annual budget of over $150 million. Provost Haynes has led her institution through a remarkable renaissance: doubling student enrollment, creating new facilities, diversifying faculty, forging links with the community and transforming the Campus into a vibrant urban academic center. One of the Provost's visions – a modern performing arts center for the students and the community – became a reality in 2005. The centerpiece of the new complex is the wood-paneled, 320-seat Kumble Theater for the Performing Arts, where cutting-edge and traditional dance, music and theater performances regularly draw standing-room-only crowds from the Campus and the surrounding region.

In 2006, under the Provost's leadership, the Campus completed the biggest building project in its history: the $45 million Wellness, Recreation and Athletic Center. With state-of-the-art fitness and aquatic facilities for students and other members of the Campus, the WRAC also features an outstanding, 2,500-seat venue, open to the public for athletic and civic events. Its Harriet Rothkopf Heilbrunn '32 Academic Nursing Center offers an extensive array of free preventive health services as well as a home for Brooklyn's first Lupus outreach and education office, all in service to the entire community. A wider array of wellness services, including special cluster of intervention programs addressing asthma and lead poisoning in children, are planned to begin in 2007. In recent months, the Provost also has overseen a dramatic re-landscaping that has nearly tripled the green space for the central campus, with native plants and amenities that create a serene environment and enhance the "college experience" on this urban campus.

Involved in higher education for three decades, Provost Haynes began her association with the Brooklyn Campus as a student, earning a bachelor's degree in English and a master's degree in counseling. She started her career as director of the Higher Education Opportunity Program. Upon completing her law degree at St. John's University in 1983, she became Long Island University's legal counsel before assuming the position of Provost in 1989.

A Queens, N.Y., native, Provost Haynes grew up with a love of books and the spoken word, which she attributes to her West Indian heritage. She has passed on that love of learning to her three daughters – a doctor, a lawyer and an educator – whom she raised as a divorced single parent. "Parenting is a training ground for being a good CEO," she maintains. Acting on her belief that a sound education is the key to realizing one's dreams, Provost Haynes is dedicated to creating an urban campus whose varied pathways help students to realize theirs.

John Suarez
Director of Athletics

John Suarez enters his 11th year as director of athletics at Long Island University, where he has overseen a dramatic growth of the school's athletic department. During his tenure, Suarez has witnessed a sensational rise in the Blackbirds' on-field success with 23 Northeast Conference championships and 20 NEC Coach of the Year awards. Under his guidance, Long Island captured its first-ever NEC Women's Commissioner's Cup in 2006.

Academic success has also been a priority in Suarez's tenure, as witnessed by the department's cumulative 3.02 grade-point average following the 2006-07 season. It was the sixth consecutive year that the department's cumulative GPA was above 3.0. In addition, LIU was cited with two National Graduation Awards, sponsored by USA Today, in the last six years.

Suarez has also spearheaded the department as it has made major improvements to its facilities. The 2006 opening of the Wellness, Recreation and Athletic Center culminated a decade of facility improvement at the Brooklyn Campus. The $40 million facility houses a 2,500-seat arena, an NCAA regulation-size swimming pool and a state-of-the-art fitness center. The WRAC also features a wellness center that is geared toward a growing Brooklyn community.

The Wellness Center came on the heels of other improvements that included the addition of lights to LIU Field in 1999, Field Turf in 2001 and bleachers for softball and baseball in 2003. Suarez has also overseen upgrades to the weight room, locker rooms and scoreboards.

Suarez's work is not done, as there are plans to further upgrade to the Blackbirds' facilities, including an extensive redesign of LIU Field and the addition of a bubble atop the Wellness Center, covering the track and tennis courts.

With a keen eye toward the future, Suarez has been mindful of LIU's past. He helped spearhead the creation of the LIU Athletics Hall of Fame in 2000 with 11 inaugural members, as well as the reestablishment of the Blackbird Club in 2002.

Suarez has also continued to make his presence felt outside the downtown Brooklyn campus. He served on the NCAA Management Council from 2003-06 and was a member of the Division I Budget Committee from 2004-06. Prior to that, Suarez was on the NCAA Championship Cabinet from 2000-03 and served as chair of the NEC Athletic Directors Committee from 2000-02.

Suarez arrived following a three-year stint as athletics director at Mercer County College in Trenton, N.J., which won two national championships and produced 11 regional titles in that span. Eighty percent of the athletes in his time attended four-year schools and every team produced a winning record during his last two years.

Suarez earned his bachelor's degree in marketing at Fairleigh Dickinson University, where he competed on the baseball team. He completed his master's in sports management at East Stroudsburg University.

The campus' athletic training staff is dedicated to the prevention, rehabilitation and recovery needs of over 200 student-athletes for the school's 17 athletic teams. Headed by three full-time athletic trainers, the staff consists of several graduate and undergraduate trainers who are enrolled in LIU's renowned athletic training program.

Because of the extreme availability of the training program's resources, great attention and detail is placed on each athlete in order to provide the best care and best specific plan to ensure the athlete's long-range health goals are met.

In the winter of 2005, a state-of-the-art athletic training room opened in the lower level of the Wellness, Recreation and Athletic Center. It is fully equipped with the latest modalities and rehabilitation equipment in taking care of the needs of Blackbird athletes.

The Wellness Center also houses resources and programs to promote the health of community residents. Cardiac rehabilitation, orthopedic therapy and asthma education services are available. In addition, the facility features specialized equipment, such as a separate therapy pool equipped with a hydraulic floor. In addition to providing treatment and rehabilitation, the athletic training staff provides education to student-athletes regarding health matters and concerns in order to aid students in achieving optimum health and conditioning.

The sports medicine program is under the direction of Danny O'Connor, who was promoted to head trainer in 2000. O'Connor, who started with LIU as a graduate student in 1994, is responsible for maintaining the operation of the athletic training room. His duties also include the coordination of medical coverage and the administering of the athletic department's drug education and testing program. He also is in charge of scheduling appointments with the program's physician, coordinating preseason physical exams and designing treatment and rehabilitation programs.

O'Connor consults regularly with athletic department orthopedic surgeon Dr. Howard Levy, a doctor of orthopedic surgery and sportsmedicine at Lenox Hill Hospital in New York City. Levy and a network of medical staff, mostly from Lenox Hill, work closely with LIU athletes for their surgical and rehabilitative needs.

Richard James
Strength and Conditioning Coach

The strength and conditioning program at Long Island University is designed to help student-athletes maximize their athletic potential and performance while reducing the risk of injury.

Coordinated by Richard James, a former Blackbird and All-American in the 400-meter dash, specialized workout programs are tailored to enhance athletes' physical abilities in their specific sports, as each sport places different demands on the body. Included in his regimen are weight training, power and speed training, flexibility training, plyometrics and conditioning.

The weight training room is located in the new state-of-the art Wellness, Recreation and Athletic Center. The facility houses not only a fitness center equipped with the latest equipment - from stationary bikes with built in televisions to a full weight station - but also a separate weight room especially geared for student-athletes.

There is a full range of equipment to meet the diverse needs of each student-athlete from preseason conditioning to the offseason variety. Treadmills and stationary bikes, free weights and press machines are just some of the pieces of equipment which make it one of the most complete facilities in the Northeast Conference.

Nora Mavashev
Academic Enhancement Coordinator

The balancing of academic achievement and athletic success is the primary concern of LIU's Department of Athletics. The University's student-athlete academic services are designed to help the department fulfill its commitment to all student-athletes in their pursuit of academic excellence.

At LIU, there is a high priority placed on academic integrity, along with an opportunity to take advantage of extraordinary academic programs. The goal of the LIU Athletic Department is to give student-athletes an avenue to seek help, whether it be for tutorial assistance, scheduling of classes, personal or career development or to improve on their test-taking and time-management skills.

In her fourth year, Nora Mavashev is responsible for monitoring academic progress of the student-athletes, ensuring they meet and exceed the University's academic goals in compliance with NCAA and institutional standards. In conjunction with the director and senior associate director of athletics, Mavashev has formed close relationships with the academic advisement office and counseling center to assist the student-athlete in negotiating the demands of daily practices and games.

The athletic department had an overall grade point average this past year of 3.02. In the spring of 2007, eight of the 17 teams posted semester and cumulative averages above 3.00. For the year, there were 100 student-athletes (51 percent) who had a cumulative GPA above 3.00 and 23 student-athletes (12 percent) with GPAs above 3.50.

The University has twice been recognized by the NCAA and USA Today for having the highest graduation rate in the nation as compared to the remainder of the student body.

David Ledet (2001-04) graduated in May 2005 with a 3.89 GPA as a double major in English and Political Science, becoming the first LIU student-athlete to be named valedictorian. The Houma, La., native was named to the ESPN The Magazine Academic All-America First Team for men's soccer, as well as, the Northeast Conference Men's Soccer Scholar-Athlete. A standout defender over four seasons, his intensity and smart play helped the Blackbirds capture the NEC title in 2004.

Ledet penned the following letter just after graduation to head coach TJ Kostecky, reflecting on his time and memories at LIU:

"I want to thank you specifically for your invaluable support for my athletic and academic endeavors. It is the combination of location and administration that has made LIU such a distinguished academic and athletic atmosphere for me.

"I have heard from friends of mine who played at bigger Division I schools where they were confronted with coaches and teachers who were often too busy to give them personal attention or too disconnected to understand the importance of both aspects of athletic life at a university. Many did not finish their athletic or academic careers. Fortunately for me, this is the opposite of what LIU has been.

"The open dialogue between, for instance, the Honors and Athletics programs allowed me to take advantage of all of the opportunities this university provides. The fact our team won conference and attended the NCAA Tournament while achieving the highest GPA in Division I is a testament to the focus you put on excellence on and off the field.

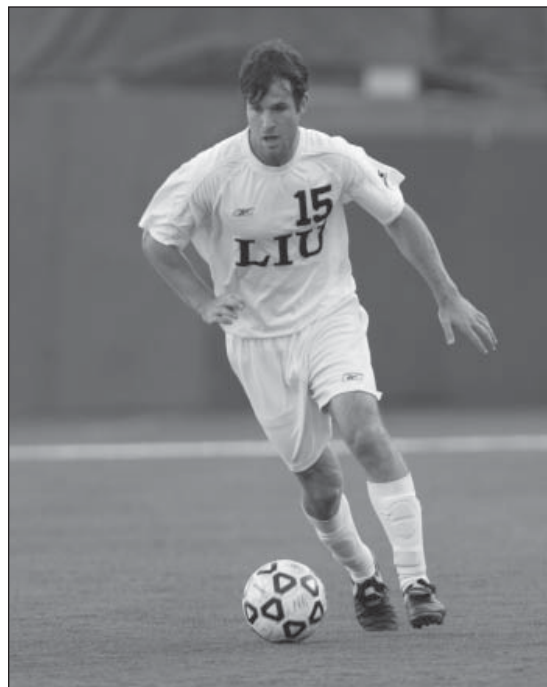

"One should not overlook the fact LIU is located less than two miles from the largest financial center in the world. The significance of this is that career opportunities are close at hand. Internships and organizations aimed at incorporating students into their workforce and providing funding for their participation is a benefit that does not exist at other universities.

"Part of coaching is being able to connect all of these features in order to encourage teammates to grow as a team and as individuals. In a word, LIU offered me a venue to explore my athletic and individual potential by encouraging excellence on the field and in the classroom. Specifically, you were understanding when conflicts inevitably arose between soccer and work. I could not imagine a better atmosphere for growing as a player and a student. I mean that quite seriously.

"This is a brief synopsis of how I feel about my time here at LIU. While you may go on and win national championships and world titles, I will always remember the way it felt to win conference! That is something I can not forget."

Thanks again,
David Ledet

David Ledet helped lead LIU to a NEC Championship in 2004. That same year, he earned a spot on the ESPN The Magazine Academic All-District 1 Men's Soccer First Team.

New York,

Symbolically, if not geographically, New York City is the very definition of a metropolis. The country's largest and most populous city boasts an array of amenities for both the common visitor and those who call the thrilling atmosphere home.

Long Island University is located in downtown Brooklyn, a thriving borough. The sights are endless. One might take a magical stroll through the Brooklyn Botanical Gardens, visit the Promenade, or walk across the storied Brooklyn Bridge—all just minutes from LIU. The campus rests just one subway stop away from Manhattan, where you can view the city's mystique atop the Empire State Building, shop in Soho and the West Village, eat in Little Italy, or take a horse-drawn carriage through Central Park. New York City provides an ambiance and an experience unparalleled to any other.
